SHOULD WOMEN STUDY THE CLASSICS?: OPENING LECTURE OF THE ARTS COURSE AT QUEEN MARGARET COLLEGE, GLASGOW, NOVEMBER 3RD, 1891 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Should Women Study the Classics?: Opening Lecture of the Arts Course at Queen Margaret College, Glasgow, November 3rd, 1891 But, in reality, these two movements are converging, rather than opposed, movements. They have their origin in the same cause. It has been discovered, rather late in the day, that there are no such intellectual distinctions as used to be taken for granted between men and women and that, in consequence, there is no intellectual pursuit which need remain, on the mere score of difficulty, a sealed book to woman, if she have a mind for it, and if it be suited to her future requirements. Once more has the old proverb been found true What is sauce for the gander, is sauce for the goose also. Hence, just as it has been recognized that there are certain male minds unsuited for the severer studies, certain male callings for which those studies are not indispensable so it has been made apparent, by some conspicuous examples, that there are certain female minds which can draw their whole value out of the severest studies, certain female lives to which these may prove the richest and most graceful ornament. The process, on both sides, is one of assimilation differences of mind, whether in men or women, will, under all circumstances, call for different modes of treatment; so our question is no longer whether Classics, Mathematics, Science, should be taught to women, but to what women, with a view to what lives, for what exact purposes, and to what extent respectively, should they be taught?
