Forgotten Books, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Polish Problem Poles form now per cent. Of the whole population of the Duchy of Posen, Germans composing the remainder. Per sistent and costly efiorts by the Government to decrease the proportion of Poles and to buy out the land owned by them are succeeding extremely slowly, and the results obtained are, as the Germans themselves admit, far below the expectation of the promoters of the anti-polish crusade. At the beginning of this century 48 per cent. Of the whole land in the Duchy was owned by Poles and 52 per cent. By Germans (including State property and Crown lands). Such distribution of land, in com parison with the ownership of land fifty years ago, presents a progress in favour of the German element, but this progress has not been half as rapid as intended in the scheme, and the whole enterprise, judged from the point of view of the money invested, represents a failure, as exaggerated prices have been paid for the land acquired from the Poles. These results are chie?y due to the new spirit of enterprise developed lately by Polish peasants. Poles began buying out the German proprietor settled in the Duchy at a faster rate than the Colonising Commission acquired land from the Poles. Between 1897 and 1900 the Germans bought hectares, against bought by Poles. Polish banks and numerous cooperative and friendly societies enable the Poles to oppose successfully the German economic competition. In the Duchy two nations living side by side are fighting on every field of activity; even commercial undertakings are run on national lines, Polish shops, hotels, restaurants being boycotted by the Germans, and vice versa. If the struggle between two nationalities were...
