Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from On the Mesozoic Rocks, in Some of the Coal Explorations in Kent The explorations for coal in Kent by means of borings and shafts have provided exceptional opportunities of examining the concealed Mesozoic rocks of the County. Accounts of the Coal Measures, so far as those strata have been penetrated, have been published from time to time by geologists officially connected with the exploring companies, but the published descriptions of the overlying strata have been meagre and inadequate. In view of the additions which were likely to be made to our knowledge of the range and character of the Mesozoic rocks under the south-east of England and the importance of that knowledge as bearing on the prospects of future explorations, it was determined to take advantage of the permission which had been accorded to us by some of the exploring companies to make full examination of the material raised to the surface, on the understanding that our investigations were not extended into the Coal Measures. The present volume is the outcome of that determination. The investigation was actually commenced in...
